What to do on a rainy day...

By Peter Petersen, +45 20 20 15 35

Hopefully we will be able to fly every day during the contest. But - unfortunately the Danish weather can be rather unpredictable... A single day of rest is ok, but 2-3 days like "sitting ducks", is something quite different! In that situation you may wish to get away from the hang glider site for a little while and experience something else. You can do this on your own, but some of us may also wish to do it together. For inspiration, we have made this folder with various proposals.

Trolley-cycling:

Try a different kind of outing. Hire a trolley-cycle! The trolley-cycle tour is between Herborg and Skjern on the disused Skjern-Videbæk railway. The track is 13 Km (26 Km out and back). There are picnic areas alongside the track. Take a picnic basket with you and make it a experience to remember! Each trolley-cycle can carry 3 adults.

Largest limestone mine in the world:

A piece of Denmark's history and an endless maze of mine tunnels. In Mønsted Kalkgruber there are more than 60 Km's of underground paths. Some are as large as cathedrals and others are so narrow that a grown man cannot walk through them upright. 2 kilometres of pathway are electrically lit.

From the main path which leads straight into the limestone mountain you can by means of a side path gain access to a very old cave system.

Further down the main path you reach "Nonbos Cave" where people worked in the years around 1840.

From this cave you have access to the deepest paths which lead to two lakes. Over the largest lake a multi-media show takes place every half hour, telling the history of the caves. The pictures and images are dramatically projected on the cave walls and water surface.
